

Isaac Newton is one of the most important figures in the history of both science and math. He laid the foundation for classical physics and invented much of modern calculus. Much of his genius was to generalize the work of Galileo, Descartes, and Kepler. The physics that he described was our best understanding of how the world works until Einstein came along: nearly 350 years later! It's difficult to overstate how influential this guy was.